PRICE THREE CENTS

MANY PRESENT AT
FUNERAL SERVICES
OF COLONEL COPELast Tribute Is Paid To Superintendent Of Battlefield; Buried In Evergreen.

Largely attended funeral services were held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the Cope home, Baltimore street, for Colonel Emmor Bradley Cope, superintendent of the Gettysburg national park, who died last Saturday evening.

The Rev. D. W. Woods, pastor of the Lower Marsh Creek Presbyterian church, preached the sermon, paying unstinting tribute to the greatness of the man, to his sterling qualities and to his services on behalf of the battlefield.

The Rev. Mr. Woods was assisted in the service by the Rev. Edward H. Jones, pastor of the Gettysburg Presbyterian church, of which Colonel Cope was an active member, holding the position of elder at the time of his death.

Had Qualities of the Great
The Rev. Mr. Woods spoke in part, as follows:

"Of the men who knew Lincoln few remain. To have known Lincoln may be no credit to a man. To have a spirit like his means that one possesses the ideas, the principles, the estimate of human worth which found their high expression in the career of the great president whom one has aptly called 'the first American.'"

"His outstanding characteristic was simplicity. Such also, I believe, was the evident quality of Colonel Cope's character. His clear vision saw life plainly because his heart was pure."

"A man greater than Lincoln, the great Master of us all, said the entrance into the kingdom of heaven, into the truest, highest life, is through the gateway of childhood. Colonel Cope never lost the child-like spirit."

"Years and experience developed abilities of a high order. The strength and gentleness, the self-control and peace, the joy in all simple beauty, which grew in him to ripeness and maturity, gave him a nature, mellow and serene, which was founded on and rose from a plain and sure faith in God as our Father, and in which he looked upon men as his brothers. This was his religion and his life."

"It is not surprising, therefore, that he was a careful workman, accurate and faithful, a loyal friend, a fearless champion of the right. The fine work that he did, the trust reposed in him by the national government, left him absolutely unspoiled; there was in him not the slightest trace of pride. His modesty, his humility, won for him the love and friendship of his associates, both superiors and inferiors. Little children were his familiars."

"Behold," said the Master, "I have called you friend," and such was Colonel Cope to all who knew him."

"His was the simplicity that is in Christ, our divine Master and Friend. It was of such as Colonel Cope that our Lord said, 'Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God.'"

The Albert J. Lentz American Legion post furnished a guard of honor, a firing squad and bagler, and full military honors were accorded the Civil War veteran in Evergreen cemetery, where interment was made.

Six of Colonel Cope's grandsons were pallbearers. They were Robert Martin and Edward, Ralph, Bradley, Joseph and Charles Wible.

ARE PROGRESSING7500 Square Feet Of Canvas Contracted For Annual Festival; Invite Old Timers.

Plans for the Fairfield homecoming and firemen's festival, to be held July 1, 2, 3, and 4 at Fairfield, were discussed at a meeting of the general committee held at the fire house Tuesday evening and considerable progress was reported.

Contracts for 7500 square feet of canvas to house the concessions and provide an auditorium for the carnival were signed and tentative arrangements for some of the concessions, which will be conducted exclusively by the members of the fire company, were made.

As was the case last year all of the games, eating and souvenir concessions are taken care of by committees from the fire company and the proceeds they receive are turned into the fund for the payment of the fire truck, which was purchased two years ago.

The entertainment committee is scouting about the county trying to secure the best talent available for exhibitions, and a good program of amusements is being secured. In addition to the dances with the jazz orchestra and also the old fiddlers, several baseball games are being arranged and contests, in which old and young can take part, planned.

Within a short time letters to former residents of Fairfield will be sent out inviting them to come home for the short period and promising them a welcome. Several speakers will be secured and on Sunday it is planned to hold a community service to which the visitors will be invited. A prominent minister, a native of the community, will be asked to deliver the sermon.

The final arrangements for the program will be made at a meeting of the general committee Friday evening.

MEXICO EMBARGOES
AMERICAN GOODS

Mexico City, June 1.—(AP)—An official boycott by governmental departments against American goods has been decreed by President Calles as a reprisal for "the systematic embargo placed by the United States on merchandise bought by different governmental departments in the United States." The decree considers the "embargo" injurious and due to unjustified delays.

The presidential decree instructs governmental departments not to buy directly or indirectly furniture, machinery or any kind of goods in the United States and instructs the foreign office to order the Mexican embassy and consulates in the United States not to make any payments running contrary to this decision.

HYGIENE CHIEF IN COUNTY INSPECTS
EATING PLACESConduct Survey of Camp Sites For Tourists to Determine If Water Supplies Are Kept Pure.

Howard M. Haines, chief of the bureau of hygiene, state department of health, accompanied by Dr. Eugene Elgin, of East Berlin, Adams county medical director, inspected eating and drinking stands and public rest camps in the county today.

Many of the law's provisions, regulating stands and camp sites, have been on the statute books for a number of years, but have never been strictly enforced, Mr. Haines said. An effort is now being made to rigidly enforce all of the provisions of the laws regulating stands and camp sites.

To Test Water
According to Mr. Haines, the traveling laboratories of the state department of health will start out this week to test water at eating and drinking stands and camp sites. This is now a yearly practice of the department. Signs designating water supplies as "good" or "dangerous" are given on the outcome of the tests of the water.

The general provisions of the state law governing eating and drinking places and camp sites follow:

"The provisions of these rules and regulations shall apply throughout the commonwealth of Pennsylvania and shall apply equally to individuals, partnerships, firms, corporations, municipalities and any other political subdivisions and shall apply to any camp now or hereafter established within the commonwealth."

"For the purpose of these rules and regulations the term 'camp' shall mean any tract of land used, either with or without charge, by the public for camping purposes or upon which cabins, tents, barracks, or similar facilities are provided for use by the public for temporary lodging purposes."

"Every camp subject to the provisions of these rules and regulations shall comply therewith."

"The tract of land used for the camp site shall be well drained, susceptible to quick drying after rain and remote from marshes or swamps. It (Continued on Second Page)

ONTARIO OPENS
LIQUOR SALES

Windsor, Ont., June 1.—(AP)—Liquor went on sale in Ontario today for the first time since the province was voted dry in 1916 and indications were that the new order of things would be accepted as a part of the day's routine.

Provincial officials issued orders against the staging of demonstrations by enthusiastic wets and postponed for a few days issuance of liquor permits to American tourists to prevent a possible unseemly rush from across the border.

Too Many Holidays

Constantinople.—So many religious holidays are celebrated here by various creeds that Turkey's metropolis really has only three full business days a week.

Friday is the Moslem Sabbath, Saturday the Jewish and Sunday the Christian. Tuesday is not religious, but held to be unlucky because centuries ago it fell into the hands of Moslems, and Greek tradition as to its ill luck has been taken up by the Turks. Monday is a business day but not a good one.

MAN LOSES PLEA TO BE HANGED

U. S. Supreme Court Decides That Prisoner of 20 Years Must Serve Life Term.

Washington, June 1.—Vucro Perovich yesterday lost his fight for the right to be hanged.

Although he preferred death on the scaffold to life imprisonment, the United States supreme court ignored his wishes and upheld the power of the president to commute his sentence. The court held that Perovich had no right to reject executive clemency.

The case was one of the most unusual in the annals of the supreme court. As a consequence of the decision, Perovich, free for the last two years on a writ of habeas corpus, must go back to Leavenworth penitentiary for the rest of his life unless President Coolidge pardons him. He already has served more than twenty years.

One of the most extraordinary features of the case was the fact that the president who commuted Perovich's sentence now sits as chief justice of the supreme court. Because of his peculiar interest in the case, Chief Justice Taft did not participate in the decision, but he smiled broadly as he heard Justice Holmes read the opinion of his colleagues upholding his act of clemency.

LINDBERGH WILL SAIL ON MEMPHIS

Famous Aviator Accepts Invitation to Return to United States Before June 11.

Washington, June 1.—(AP)—Charles A. Lindbergh's welcome home will be a demonstration on behalf of the people of the United States extended in the national capital.

The White House announced today that the young aviator whose lone flight across the Atlantic has brought upon him the admiration of the world would come back to America on the U. S. cruiser Memphis, to be received personally by President Coolidge in Washington and to be accorded all honor befitting his accomplishment.

An invitation for Lindbergh to take the Memphis instead of the destroyer Breck was forwarded late yesterday by the cabinet committee appointed by President Coolidge to plan his reception. Today the brief announcement was made that Lindbergh had accepted the invitation "with pleasure."

The Memphis, a fast light cruiser, will be able to land Lindbergh in Washington by June 11. This will make it possible for him to be the guest of President Coolidge before the latter departs on June 13 for his summer vacation in the Black Hills of South Dakota.

Cruiser Is Put At Disposal Of Aviator; Expected Home Before June 13.

Washington, June 1.—President Coolidge is going to be the first to welcome Captain Charles A. Lindbergh back home from his triumphs in Europe and the reception is to be in Washington.

Raising the dignity of the homecoming by offering him a cruiser instead of a destroyer, the Washington government yesterday put the Memphis, now at Rotterdam, at the disposal of the New York-to-Paris flier with the hope that he would return to Washington not later than June 13, when President Coolidge will leave for his vacation in the Black Hills.

The government's plans, arranged by a cabinet committee appointed by the president, cuts New York out of the picture as official welcome, a role it has played to about every one of prominence for many years.

The government has arranged so far only to get the flier to Washington, to give President Coolidge the opportunity of personally pinning the distinguished flying cross upon his breast and let him know that he is going to be promoted in army rank and that he is a real American hero and always will be.

The details of the reception are yet to be worked out and Captain Lindbergh is going to have the say about where he is going next to take the plaudits of the American people. It is possible that Mr. Coolidge may go down the Potomac in the Mayflower to meet the Memphis.

It is hoped that Lindbergh will reach Washington by June 11. If he does, the president and his cabinet plan to give him a royal welcome immediately upon his arrival. If he should arrive on Sunday, June 12, the official reception will be postponed until Monday, just before the President and Mrs. Coolidge leave for the Black Hills.

Aviators Will Photograph 22,000 Square Miles of Northland in Search For Fliers.

New York, June 1.—(AP)—A giant photograph of 22,000 square miles of Newfoundland is to be taken from the air and pieced together in the most thorough search yet to be undertaken for the missing French aviators, Nungesser and Gail. It is believed that this photograph will definitely establish whether or not the crew of France's White Bird succeeded in crossing the ocean and were forced down in Newfoundland.

On Thursday morning a Fokker monoplane will take him air from North river or Staten Island and head away for the northern wastes.

The pilot will be F. Sidney Cotton, Newfoundland air mail pilot and seal spotter. He will be accompanied by Cy Caldwell, as relief pilot and observer, and a mechanic still to be named.

The actual search will begin at Harbor Grace, the plane zigzagging back and forth and the observer scanning the country with binoculars as well as photographing the entire terrain.

STOCK REPORT

New York, June 1.—(AP)—Bullish enthusiasm ran rampant again in today's stock market with more than 50 issues moving to new high ground. Bear traders succeeded in uncovering a few weak spots, but offerings were well absorbed. Rails were again bought in large volume.

Tractor Equipped
Farmers Ahead

Farmers who own tractor equipment are far advanced in planting crops compared with horse equipped farms. One farmer plowed, prepared a seed bed, and planted a fifteen acre field of corn with his Cletrac Tank Type Tractor in less time than a field of equal size was being plowed alone with six horses.

This means a difference between success and failure in seasons like the present one. We have several used and rebuilt Cletracs, plows and harrows at prices that are sure to interest you. Cletracs are adaptable to all soil and climatic conditions, which makes them useful every day of the year.

Matinee Ladies

BY William B. Courtney

"MATINEE LADIES," with May McAvoy, is a Warner Bros. picture production of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Bob Ward, a poor college student, working as a dancing partner for rich women, falls in love with Sally Smith, a cigarette girl. She warns him against the mysterious and beautiful Mrs. Hammond, habitué of the roadhouse, who finds her "thrill" in "hunting" Bob, who, however, trusts her. She offers him free use of her secret apartment. Bob talks it over with Sally, but quarrels bitterly with her when she refuses to send back a gift of clothes from Mannon, a rival suitor. He leaves in a huff, determined to go to Mrs. Hammond.

CHAPTER XIV—Continued

His mind made up, Bob resolutely hopped a bus, after consulting the address Mrs. Hammond had given him, and started downtown. At 57th Street and Fifth Avenue he alighted, and walked two blocks east to Park Avenue. The apartment house was about a block and a half south of there; he found it without any trouble. A mammoth, opulent, ornate hive in the line of a whole wide avenue full of luxurious hives. Good heavens, the money represented on this Park Avenue! Why, a man with only $100,000 a year income would be a poor man here! Bob boyishly fell to romantically thinking of the day when he would live in the grandest of these grand apartments—by virtue of his princely income as the country's—nay, the world's—foremost engineer.

But that was the future. Here, in the stark present, was the gilded entrance of the apartment house corresponding to the address Mrs. Hammond had given him. Oh, goah, the magnificence of the place frightened him. The dignity of the mammoth, berib-oned and beunifomed doorman overawed him. Bob halted on the sidewalk directly in front of the entrance, and surveyed it tentatively, debating in his mind whether or not he really ought to go in. Now that he was at a crisis of his decision, he faltered, like a man who has walked bravely under a cold shower bath, only to shrink back from the first contact with the water.

The doorman was glaring at him suspiciously. Bob couldn't think comfortably, while he was being stared at in that manner. He'd walk around a bit, and ponder. He did so. Then, upon approaching the entrance again, still dubious, he was more than ever the mark for the doorman's vigilant, fishy eye.

"Gee, I can't go in now, after stalling around like this. He'll surely think I'm a yeggman!"

Bob walked by, whistling to camouflage his feelings, and resolved to come back a little later, when the major-domo would in all probability have forgotten this incident.

He sought a cheap restaurant over on Lexington Avenue, a block to the east. Funny how the blocks change in New York, he reflected, as he settled on a stool to his supper of a plate of soup and platter of beans: one block millionaires, next block paupers. It was just like in society, like in life; the step between the two classes wasn't so very difficult, after all. It was largely a trick, and a matter of getting the "breaks." It would be fun fighting, working, for the "break"—and then taking little Sally Smith up to great wealth with him!

For Sally Smith, resent her actions and attitude though he may, always slipped back into his consciousness when he began to dream. She naturally fitted into his hopes and plans for the future. It was significant. After all, he probably had been a bit too quick-tempered with her. He had not given her any chance to explain. Perhaps there was a good reason why she had got those clothes from Mannon. Her mother, Bob knew, favored Mannon. Suddenly it occurred to Bob very significantly—and he cursed himself as a dunce for not having thought of it before—that no doubt Sally's mother had had a hand in Mannon's munificence.

He fell, over his coffee and pie, to betting himself that if he went back to talk things over more rationally, more coolly, with Sally, he would find that everything was perfectly on the level.

He sauntered from the lunch room, with half a mind to each of two things: either to go to Sally first and conclude his discussion with her in a sensible way, or postpone another call upon Sally until after he had definitely gone up to see Mrs. Hammond and accept her proposition.

Walking slowly, thinking, he reached the apartment house again at length; and again he stopped, undecided. See Mrs. Hammond, or see Sally first—which?

Bob, looking up suddenly, caught a positively baleful look from the suspicious doorman. Abruptly, Bob turned and hurried away—his mind made up. There was no doorman outside Sally Smith's home!

Some time later, when he rang for the second time that evening, the bell on the Smith house, it was Mrs. Smith herself who answered the signal.

"Sally is not at home. She's gone out for the evening with Mr. Mannon!" she snapped, in answer to Bob's timid question. It gave her a great deal of pleasurable triumph to be able to tell Bob that; and to be able, immediately thereafter, to slam the door in his face and thus preclude any further questions.

Bob turned and descended the steps slowly. He was plunged in misery and uncertainty again. Heavy-hearted, he wondered where she had gone with Mannon. Perhaps the answer to that question would provide him with a clue as to the harmlessness, or otherwise, of the clothes gift and of the evening's event.

He encountered, providentially, one of the Smith boys on the sidewalk near the house, evidently returning from an errand. It cost Bob a dollar as a bribe—but the information he got was worth any expenditure.

"Yeb, Mister, I know where she and Mr. Mannon's gone. They went to a party at Miss Revere's!"

CHAPTER XV.

A party at Mazie Revere's was no small or mean event in the gay night life of New York. True, it was more apt to be reported in TOWN TOPICS than in the society notes of the EVENING POST. But it was also true that, although the hostess was not listed in the Social Register, every dowager's son of her male guests was, indeed, they would have to be—to get on Mazie's envied mailing list! Mazie's was one of those places where a prominent banker or broker who know an equally prominent banker or broker in Wall Street during the day as Jones, would encounter him frolicking here under the name of "Brown." Not that secrecy was at all necessary at Mazie's; only the novitiates resorted to it. In fact, Anyhow, Mazie knew who they all really were, so there was no purpose in non-de-plumes after the first guilty feeling had worn off.

For crass wealth alone was not enough to win a sportively inclined clubman inclusion on Mazie's mailing list. His honest-to-goodness blue blood, and the number and exclusiveness of the clubs he belonged to, had to outweigh his "pile of rocks," as Mazie was wont to refer to material wealth.

"Them birds with real social prestige," Mazie would often philosophize to Madame Leonine and other of her lady friends, "is less liable to raise ructions if they get wise that they have had their legs pulled. You know, family honor and the old Yale spirit keeps their traps closed. But them common new rich fellows, like bootleggers and pickle wart makers, gee! they're liable to mash in a girl's face."

Therefore, the nouveau rich knew not Mazie's hospitality. On the night when Sally and Tom went to Mazie's, they and the others fortunate enough to be among those present were treated to a display of her talent for bizarre and colorful entertainment at its lavish best.

Among the novelties that kept a dozen of the best clubmen in New York away from the best clubs in New York, were a dozen of the most beautiful girl dancers Mazie had been able to beg, borrow or steal from her wide acquaintance with cabaret and chorus managers. These young persons of charm and pulchritude were gracefully disposed through the various rooms as living statues, wearing costumes—or, rather, a lack of costumes—that would have stopped any musical show in town.

WOODMEN GET VERDICT

She May Confidently Remove Her Jacket

Jacket

THERE come days when the strictly tailored suit is a little too hot for comfort or a little too street-like for the occasion. Then a smart outfit like this fills the bill perfectly, for it may be very light in weight and quite dressy in effect. The lower part of the slip-over frock and the separate bolero jacket are made of a silk crepe, crepe satin or a soft light wool with a long-sleeved blouse-part made in a harmonizing shade of crepe de Chine or satin. The gay embroidery at hip, sleeve and collar shows below the self-bindings of the jacket, puffs out a bit from under the saddle-shouldered sleeves, and peeps over the narrow collar.

STORES TO CLOSE THURSDAY Afternoon

Gettysburg Merchants Will Follow Usual Custom of Giving Employees a Half Holiday During Warm Months

BEGINNING Thursday, June 2, 1927, we, the undersigned merchants of Gettysburg, will close our stores every Thursday afternoon at twelve o'clock noon and remain closed the remainder of each Thursday.

This action is agreed upon, too, in order to give our clerks and other workers a half holiday during sultry weather of the summer. We feel that in giving them the rest, they will be better able to give our customers and friends better service during the hours our stores are open for business, particularly on Saturday, when the rural folk must necessarily do most of their buying.

Memorial Day Notes.—

The stores

in general did a rushing business.

The G. A. band, the colored band and the drum corps furnished excellent music on the 30th and deserve to be complimented.

There were no disturbances and the large crowd was a remarkably well-behaved one. "Drunks," we are exceedingly glad to note, were scarce.

The electric railway did a land office business, the cars being crowded during the entire day.

The Y. W. C. T. U. assisted by a few of the Senior Loyal Temperance Legion made their annual gift of a button hole bouquet of flowers to the crews of all the trains coming to town on the railroads and to the conductors and the motormen on the trolley.

High School Alumni.—The Gettysburg high school alumni association held their first annual banquet at the Eagle Hotel Wednesday at 6:15.

While seated around the table, the following toasts were responded to: Toastmaster, N. C. Barbehenn; Greeting to 1902, Annie Welty; Our Prospects, James Diller; Recitation, "Aunt Sylvia's First Lesson in Geography," Margaret McMillan; Reminiscences of School Days, Louise Stahl; Our Boys, Mary Sheads; Our Girls, Roy Dougherty; Our Alumni in Active Life, Miss Cope.

Those present were: William I. Book, N. C. Barbehenn, Helen Cope, Pauline Mitten, Sarah Raffensperger, Nellie Tate, Mary Sheads, Margie Trostle, Margaret McMillan, Lillie B. Christman, Harold Lewars, Elsie Martin, Rufus Weaver, Nanna Kitzmiller, John S. Gilbert, Stella Tawney, Louise Stahl, Montfort Melchoir, Carrie Tipton, Margie Deatrick, Virgie Tawney, Millard Tawney, Amanda Tawney, Phoebe Ogden, Daisy Long, Cora Topper, Margaret Culp, Zulu Eckenrode, Osceola Holmes, Alice Black, Harry Garlach, Nannie Minter, Carrie Inglebert, Roy Dougherty, Sara Welty, James Diller, Mary Forney, Esther Tipton, Samuel Welty, Milton Remmel, Annie Welty, Jane Shields, Maurice Schriver, Jessie Ziegler, Lily Dougherty, Sara Wilson, Mabel Kitzmiller, Susie Black, Ruth Stine, Janet Cunningham, Belle Scott, George Crouse, Laura Johns, Charles Lewars, Lula Little, Paul Basehoar, Eva Holtzworth, John C. Tate.

About 1:30 a. m., those present left for their respective homes. On the hotel steps the class of 1901 gave their class yell. Although the example was thus set, no other class gave theirs.

Personal Mention.—Simon J. Codori and family left Saturday for Pittsburgh where Mr. Codori has accepted the position as manager of a large drug store.

Maj. Henry D. Snyder, surgeon in the Regular Army, and who has just returned from the Philippine Islands, circulated among old friends last week.

Miss Edith Hamilton, of York, is circulating among old acquaintances.

Rev. V. T. Rue is off on a ten days' fishing trip to Hog Island, Virginia.

Miss Lottie K. Basehoar, who has been teaching in the high school at Vine Land, New Jersey, returned home last week.

Robert S. Schriver, a former employee in this office, now holding a good job in Philadelphia, spent some time with friends and relatives in this place.

William Hennig returned last week from a trip to Philadelphia and Washington.

House In Mourning

Guilford, Conn.—The house that went into mourning over the death on the guillotine of Louis XVI of France still stands on the Boston Post Road in this village. The house, built in 1761, was owned in 1793 by Nicholas Loyal, a French refugee from Guadeloupe. When Loyal heard of the tragic death of his king he painted his house black, and it has been painted black ever since. It is now occupied as a farmhouse.

Just Folks

By Edgar A. Guest

THE MODERN HERO

In days of old, when knights were bold,
Men fought, a maid to win,
But here today they've put away
Their armor made of tin,
And those who'd woo a maiden true,
Must rake the shekels in.

No troubadour beside her door
Or 'neath her window pane
Now stops to sing a pretty thing
Or hum a sweet refrain,
Who tried that stuff would soon
Discover it was vain.

To win her now, a man somehow
Must have a high-powered car,
So keen the strife to get a wife,
So wise the ladies are.
A man must flash a roll of cash
Or he'll not travel far.

In days of old, when knights were bold,
The strong man got the bride;
Man's only chance was with the lance,
Thus many a prospect died.
Now woman proud walks through the crowd
With a weakling at her side.

He lacks a chin, his hair is thin,
And yet she thinks him fair,
His health is bad, but still she's glad
His name and fame to share,
And he's beaten out the strong and stout,
For he's a millionaire.

Paris Artists Plan To Clothe Man Anew

Paris.—(AP)—Man is to be clothed "just as he ought to be" by France's best artists.

Abel Faive, Van Dongen Cappiello, Mallet-Stevens, Zarrago and 15 others of note are designing an entirely new style of male clothing. They are starting without pre-conceived ideas, they say, and with a determination to do man a good turn after all he has suffered at the hands of tailors, laundries and hatters.

Here is the formula for the designs, which will be exhibited in an art gallery soon:
"Suppose that all your clothes have been burned. Consider your memory gone to the extent that you have forgotten what kind of clothes you wore. Then design the costume you would like to wear."

Meantime several tailors are busy with a crusade for short pants of all colors, with brilliantly colored stockings.

Little Jack Rabbit

by David Cope

"Well, now that I've done a good turn for Mr. Lucky Leftindfoot, I'll go back and feed the youngsters," said Mr. Fishhawk to himself, as the happy old gentleman rabbit hopped home with the little pigeon in his arms. So off flew the feathered fisherman to the river. Soon his keen eyes spied a fish and, swooping down, he clutched it with his strong talons and bore it away to his nest in the spruce tree on the high hillside.

"Here comes father," cried one of his little birds, looking over the edge of the rude nest of sticks.
"It's your turn," said the other little Fishhawk. They were well behaved. Never crowded each other to get the first bite, but took their turn. Mr. and Mrs. Fishhawk had brought them up well. Yes, sir. They had much better manners than young robins, who jostle and crowd each other in their eagerness to be fed.

"Wait patiently," said Mr. Fishhawk. "This fish is much too large for one small birdie. I must tear it to pieces." And while Mr. Fishhawk tore it into shreds, they waited, each then taking his turn until there was nothing left of the fish.

Presently Mrs. Fishhawk appeared in the distance.
"Pip, pip, ch'wee!" shouted the two little Fishhawks, standing tiptoe on the edge of the nest to catch a glimpse of mother's catch.

Then away sailed Mr. Fishhawk to look for a trout among the quiet pools. Goodness me, but these patient parent birds were on the wing most of the time to feed their two little birds. But the fishing was good, and many a bone and bit of meat fell to the ground. Several little Shady Forest and Sunny Meadow folk soon discovered this, among whom was Sammy Skunk. Lazily walking each evening over to the big spruce tree, he enjoyed a good supper. And Jimmy Jay and his family, who had built a nest just under Mr. Fishhawk's parrot of the abundance that overflowed from the rough stick-house overhead. But the fishhawk family never begrudged the Jays. In fact, they welcomed noisy Jimmy Jay, for he kept a sharp lookout for enemies. No one in the Shady Forest is so good a watchman as Jimmy Jay. Nor has any one such curiosity. He is the first to shout a note of warning. And although he is generally considered a thief, he never molested Mr. Fishhawk and his wife. Never stole a bit of fish, but was content to take whatever dropped from the rude nest above. Jimmy Jay showed much wisdom in this respect. "Deed he did. Mr. Fishhawk's presence was a great protection to him and his family, and in return, Jimmy Jay's watchfulness well repaid Mr. Fish-hawk. So they both lived like friends, each one helping the other. On returning from the South each spring Mr. and Mrs. Fishhawk, always sought out their old home, knowing almost for certain that the large fresh sticks which they always wedged in firmly across the top of their nest before leaving for the South would hold it securely in place throughout the winter.

Hindenburg Home Is Now For Sale

Berlin.—(AP)—The president of the German republic will have a permanent summer capital and vacation grounds at Wilhelmshoehe Castle, near Cassel, if the plans to so designate it find favor with Field Marshal von Hindenburg and the cabinet.

Wilhelmshoehe was the favorite summer resort of the late Empress Augusta Victoria, wife of William II. The city fathers of Cassel in offering Wilhelmshoehe as permanent summer residence for the chief executive point out that Wilhelmshoehe is "identified with great historical memories" and is "known and famed far beyond the confines of Germany."

They urge that "its unequalled natural location, its unique park—one of the finest in Europe—the healthy mountain air of the Habicht forest and the proximity of the Hessian Highlands make it an ideal place for recreation."

HEAD STUFFED FROM CATARRH OR A COLD

Says Cream Applied in Nostrils Opens Air Passages Right Up.

Instant relief—no waiting. Your clogged nostrils open right up; the air passages of your head clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking, snuffling, blowing, headache, dryness. No struggling for breath at night; your cold or catarrh disappears.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic, healing cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothes the inflamed or swollen mucous membrane and relief comes instantly. It's just fine. Don't stay stuffed-up with a cold or nasty catarrh.—Adv.

The Big Ben of Center Square

To the stranger crossing Westminster Bridge in London for the first time, Big Ben, the clock over the House of Parliament, dominates the sky line.

This giant clock is a fitting symbol of the regularity and authority of Parliament that sits at its feet.

"The chime clock on your wall reminds me of the Big Ben," a friend told us the other day. "It extends a hearty greeting to the stranger as he enters Center Square for the first time."

"As he begins to depend on it, his next reaction is one of confidence in the First National Bank. That reaction is sound, as he will find on getting acquainted. I have found you always reliable, accurate and willing to go more than half way to help your patrons."

Every day an increasing number of Gettysburg and Adams county people are using the services mentioned by our friend. If a banking service that is professional in its scope and authenticity interests you, we invite you to call on one of our officials for a conference. We have something here that is hard to duplicate.

POTATO WART IS NOW UNDER FIRE

Experimental Beds Are Started to Test Immunization of Certain Species.

Harrisburg, (AP)—Plans have been completed by the state bureau of plant industry to determine the length of time that the germ of the potato wart will live in soil which is not planted to potatoes. The experiments will cover a period of fifteen years.

A plot of ground has been leased for this purpose near Hazleton. Five beds, each 100 feet by 10 feet, will be enclosed in cement walls to prevent particles of earth being swept away, and the ground within the walls will be impregnated with wart germs. The beds will be planted to varieties of potatoes susceptible to the wart, varieties immune to the wart, to garden truck and to grass with one bed remaining fallow. As the experiment progresses the beds will be covered with coal dirt which prevents the growth of any vegetation.

The wart came into Pennsylvania in 1912 from a shipment of potatoes from Europe. The potatoes found sale in the mining sections of Pennsylvania, Maryland and West Virginia, which, state experts say, are the only places in the country where the wart has appeared.

Since the wart entered Pennsylvania it has been confined to eleven counties and within the past several years no spread of the infection has been discovered although all gardens in the vicinities of the infested areas have been inspected annually. In the territory in which it appears the residents are required, under penalty, to plant varieties immune to the disease and by this method it is hoped to eradicate the wart.

The disease, as the name implies, causes large warts to appear on the potatoes. These are much softer than the remainder of the potato and while they do not interfere with the edible qualities, the infected places rot very easily and prevent successful storage.

The wart is found in sections of Lackawanna, Luzerne, Carbon, Schuylkill, Fulton, Bedford, Huntingdon, Cambria, Armstrong, Clearfield and Centre counties.

Same High Quality

And Made Under the Same Local Management as For Many Years Past

When better Ice Cream is made, Hershey's will still be its name—to paraphrase a famous expression.

Ever since the writer assumed the management of this establishment in 1910, it has been his endeavor to make a quality product, unexcelled for its deliciousness and purity.

That this policy has been a correct one is best evidenced by the fact that seventeen years ago we did a small business of $167,000, while last year we did approximately four million dollars.

The same expert Ice Cream makers are still making Hershey's Superior Ice Cream; the same progressive policy will continue because the controlling interest is still held by local stockholders who have been identified with this concern for many years.
